

Prepare to Be Blown Away at 2 FREE Outdoor Classical Music Concerts on Mount Royal this July!

on June 21, 2018

No one can argue the fact that Montreal is awesome in the summertime. Combine music, warm weather, and this wonderful “European” North American city, and it is a recipe for great times and incredible memories. And so many free things to do in Montreal, like these 2 free outdoor classical music concerts on Mount Royal this July!

At Parc Mont Royal, get ready for The Cambridge University Wind Orchestra and Harmonie Laval, you’ll get a chance to experience these 2 free outdoor concerts.

The Cambridge University Wind Orchestra is making their way into Montreal for the first time ever, and they’re doing it all for free! It’s their 30th anniversary, and they’re celebrating the best way they know how – by playing for the love of music.

Their North American tour brings the 53-person orchestra to Montreal’s Mount Royal on July 5 at the Mordecai Richler Gazebo.

Exactly one week later, Harmonie Laval will perform Fiesta estivale. Conductor Patrick Morin will give the audience music from classic films, including Star Wars, among others.

So, mark these two amazing music events on your calendars and come prepared with a chair and some snacks.

Note: Events will be cancelled in case of bad weather.

Mount Royal’s FREE Outdoor Classical Music Concert

When: July 5 and July 12 from 7:30 PM to 9 PM

Where: Kiosque Mordecai Richler – 4060 Avenue du Parc